CRACKING DOWN ON SOUTHEND THIEVES

By Karen Davis

HUNDREDS of burglaries in Southend have prompted a police crackdown.

Operation Steel 2 aims to target the thieves breaking in to Southend's commercial and out-buildings.

The move follows 266 break-ins between September 1 and December 14.

Patrolling officers will be on the lookout for suspicious activity while offering crime prevention advice to locals.

Victoria ward neighbourhood officer, PC Pierre Guilcher, said: "We would advise residents to keep anything of value inside their homes rather than in sheds or garages and always ensure that out-buildings are securely locked up."

"If you see anyone acting suspiciously in gardens or near sheds or garages, please report it to the police straight away."

Officers will be increasing the number of 'high-visibility' patrols around the areas most affected by burglaries.

Among the worst hit areas are Blenheim, Victoria and Milton wards.

A large number of shed burglaries in Leigh have also been linked to the Manchester Drive allotments - an area the size of Chalkwell Park.

Allotment-holders are advised not to store valuables in their sheds.

Sgt Gary Lane oversees the team that polices the allotments.

He said: "As well as increasing our patrols in the area, the neighbourhood officers have set up police surgeries to engage with owners and offer crime prevention advice and assistance."

Anyone with information about who is committing this type of offence should contact their local neighbourhood policing team on 0300 333 4444 or via the team mobile phone.

Victoria and Milton ward officers can be contacted on 07817 968114. Blenheim ward officers can be reached on 07817 968093.

Ghost Story Competition 2010

CHILDREN'S GHOST STORY
WINNER - UNDER 16s. His Last
Wedding, by Joshua Watson, 14, of Benfleet

SALLY walked down the aisle, her pure white dress trailing behind her. She had a strange melon shaped head and thick eyebrows that connected over her large misshapen nose.

Her yellowing teeth were framed by fat inflamed lips and her matted hair hung down to her waist. The church was empty save for her, the priest and the dark figure that stood noiselessly at the far end of the aisle, watching with the eyes of a hawk and waiting for her to reach him. Neither of them had any family who wished to attend. Although she knew it not, for she was too blinded by love to notice his cold heart, this was how it always started.

It was always the unattractive rich lady, who had no family who would notice if she vanished. As she reached the front of the church, the priest began to speak: "Do you Percy Trifenton take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife until death do you part?"

"I do" Percy replied "Till death do us part."

For the fifth time Percy made dinner for his new wife. For the fifth time he added a lethal dose of arsenic to the cuisine, and for the fifth time he shed false tears for his departed wife as the ambulance took the corpse away. That night he counted his inheritance, hundreds upon hundreds of pounds. From each note, Queen Victoria stared up at him, almost he thought with an expression of great disapproval etched upon her face. But had she always had such thick eyebrows? Had her lips always been so inflamed and repugnant?

Surely not! As he examined the notes more closely he became aware of a misshapen nose and matted hair...

A gasp of horror escaped his lips as he leaped up in alarm as Sally's face stared at him from every note that he had gained from his foul crime. Then she was gone. Percy trembled with fear.

The next day he gathered up the money and spent it all, save for two-pound notes that he quickly tossed into a river on his way home. His sudden eagerness to spend his money delighted several local merchants, as he was known among them to be a parsimonious miser who was more interested in hoarding cash than spending it. However upon returning to his house his attention was caught by a beautiful white wedding dress that fluttered unsupported in the window.

That night Percy slept in a hotel, too terrified to return to his home. He drank himself into a deep sleep in which his dreams were haunted by his murdered bride, each vision more real and more frightening than the last. "This is not real!" Percy screamed at her "This is a dream!"

"Yes." She replied coldly "A dream that you induced with whisky, whisky laced with arsenic."

She laughed as he died. Even now in that hotel, the bride and groom can be seen.

So ended the last marriage.

Ghost Story Competition 2010

Ghost story winner crowned

GHOST STORY COMPETITION WINNER. The Saviour by Jackie Stacey, of Basildon

THE girl is young - 16 - pretty, but unremarkable, easily forgotten. The figure in the trees watches silently as she walks through his killing field.

He raises his nose into the air and breathes deeply closing his eyes in appreciation of the young woman's scent. As the full moon slides behind invisible clouds, his eyes change; no longer green, but an inhuman yellow, they elongate in his head and he sees all.

The girl is in trouble but maybe she does not know that yet. Maybe she doesn't know not to come here after dark. It is a bad place; creatures we pretend don't exist prowl here, sure-footedly, avoiding leaves that would crunch beneath human feet.

The girl catches her arm on a sharp twig and juicy beads of blood pop up along the shallow wound, though she seems not to notice. She quickens her pace, glancing over her shoulder feeling the ancient thrill of fear surge through her veins. Yes, she knows, instinct laid down over generations shouts in her head - RUN!

The man who has been watching is no longer a man. The changes are complete. Now, instead of raising a nose to sniff the air, he raises a long muzzle. Where once there was smooth pink skin, there is now matted grey fur. His body is wiry and ready and when he starts after the girl he drops to all fours and races towards her like a wolf, a werewolf.

The girl feels him coming, pounding paws and panting mouth bear down on her, with her heart bursting out of her chest she desperately searches the tree-line for The Saviour. Would he come?

That thin line of blood is calling to the monster, pounding in his head and boiling through his veins. Closer and closer until the shrieks of its excitement are all the girl can hear.

Breathing down her neck now he leaps, and during the time it takes for his feet to leave the ground and the second his teeth would rip out her throat someone slips between them and with a quick, upward thrust punctures the beast's heart, killing him instantly.

During the monster's last breath, he reverts to his human form and falls to the ground.

The girl is trembling now, tears leaking from her eyes as she looks at the dead man. An inexplicable sadness in her eyes.

The Saviour whispers: "You are safe now. I protect these woods from his kind ever since they took my life."

He pulls the shirt away from his neck revealing deep, bloodless gashes in his ghostly flesh.

"They have not killed another since that day," he beckons kindly with open arms.

"I know," she murmurs, stepping into his embrace and holding him tightly.

"And that's why he gave his life, so we can stop youuu!"

The last word is a howl, changes happen fast and when the moon appears from behind the cloud it bathes the newly changed she-wolf in silvery light.

CHILDREN'S GHOST STORY THIRD PLACE. How I Died by Ella Osbourne, Year 8 at Shoeburyness High School

Dear Reader,

The story you are about to read was my nightmare, one I'm not likely to forget. I hope you decide that you don't want to read on, and if so, screw it up and throw it under the bed where it belongs.

Before my horrifying death, I had a good life, a great father, funny friends and a brilliant boyfriend. But on November 20, 1988, that all ended, when he arrived.

Z.B

I WAS sitting on my leather armchair, reading Wuthering Heights, my cat Beelzebub purring on my lap.

My father sat in his usual chair right in front of the fire. A glass of brandy clutched in one hand, cigar smoke billowing over the top of his chair.

I finished my book for the third time in a row and closed it with a thud, placing it on the ground by my feet.

He shifted in his seat; he stared at me grinning, his eyes twinkling, his black hair shining by the light of the fire.

"What you up to Trouble?" he teased. I opened my mouth in mock horror.

"Me? Trouble? Never," I said, trying unsuccessfully to stifle a yawn.

"Bed I think," he said, taking another puff from his cigar.

"Yeah, you're right," I said, stretching. "Couldn't have put it better myself."

I shuffled over, hugged dad before dragging myself upstairs. I pulled on cotton shorts and Seth's old tee-short before collapsing on my bed.

It must have been 9.30pm when the first crack of thunder woke me up.

Cursing loudly at the weather I grabbed my glass of water and downed the whole lot, giving little peace to my sore throat.

I lay, eyes closed, listening to the rain hammering on my windows. Then the door creaked open and I growled as someone walked in closing the door behind them.

"Ever as much as I love our usual fights on whose clothes are whose, can you please save it for a more reasonable hour and not in the middle of the night," I almost yelled. She didn't reply.

I hauled myself up and found I was staring up at a blank face covered in shadows. What I did next signed my own death-wish.

I pushed him out the way and ran, wrenching the window open and climbed down the tree.

I was half way down the front garden when I ran into him.

He took my arm and raised it to his lips and bit it.

Intense pain hit me and spread slowly down my body as I writhed in agony.

"Why?" I hit the floor.

"You chose him over me, that's why," he spat at me through gritted teeth.

"No," I whimpered, gazing up into Jared's face, darkened with jealousy, tears streaming down my face.

"Yeah, think of this like Othello where I'm him and you're Desdemona."

He gave a cruel laugh as a raven flew over us cawing, signalling my death.

I tried to speak, but it came out as a gurgle, then darkness drowned me.

GHOST STORY COMPETITION THIRD PLACE Final Performance by Ted Greenwood, from Southend

WITH the audience still applauding his amazing escape from chains and manacles, the maestro staggered from the stage, collapsed in the wings, and died from a massive heart attack. The Phoenix, escapologist and mystic, would never again grace the palaces of Edwardian variety.

The night attendant at Whitechapel morgue, one Arnold Schrim, re-wrapped his half eaten sandwich and with a muttered curse, rose to answer the outside bell's clanging summons. November fog swirled about him as he swung open the heavy gates. The iron post stood dragged noisily over the cobbles. Patient, the old horse plodded across the courtyard, indifferent to the swaying of the hearse.

"Keep an eye on this one Schrimmy," joked the cloaked figure of the coachman, as he pulled to a halt under a flickering gas lamp. "He's a famous escape artist."

With a wry grin, Schrim took one end of the canvas stretcher. Between them, the two men transported the corpse inside and onto the mortuary slab. "I'll see to him now." The mortician appeared unusually solicitous. "You get off home."

Once alone, Arnold Schrim, a mean and godless man, got down to business.

"Escapologist, eh? Well there's no escaping from here!" He looped a numbered card over the lifeless foot. "Before we pop you into box thirteen, let's see what you've got for Uncle Arnold." But an initial search proved fruitless. George Strange, alias The Phoenix, had died in his spangled costume, his possessions were in the safe at the Empire Theatre. He wore no rings or medallions. Tutting with annoyance, Schrim leaned on the corpse's chest and rudely parted the lips. His sharp eyes detected a few gold fillings. With a satisfied smirk, he drew his pliers from his apron pocket. Without warning, the body emitted a low, menacing growl. The mortician paused, dismissed the sound as trapped wind, and prised open the mouth.

Unnoticed, the right hand of The Phoenix flexed and lifted. With lightning precision it grasped the mortician's wrist. The grip was that of a steel trap, the pliers clattered to the tiled floor. Staring eyes held Schrim transfixed.

The coroner arrived at nine am. Walter Smith was then on duty, and George Strange's body, still in theatrical garb, remained on the mortuary slab. Unjustly reprimanded, Smith protested that the night man had failed to put the corpse away and had gone home, leaving the mortuary unattended. "The body belongs in a chamber." Came the brusque and unsympathetic response. "Cover it decently and put it in thirteen until I can attend to it." Wally Smith hurried to comply, only to announce that berth thirteen was already occupied. The coroner, angered by this apparent further incompetence, demanded to know the identity of thirteen's unrecorded cadaver. With a rattle of iron casters, Smith fully opened the drawer. As he drew back the shroud, both men recoiled in horror.

Arnold Schrim, his face a mask of terror and his open mouth displaying bloody and toothless gums, stared starkly up at them.

Turning shopping into a work of art

By Suzi Muston

I THINK it's fair to say that more women love clothes shopping than men.

I love clothes. I know, it's superficial, and something most men won't relate to - the same way football or fishing does nothing for me.

When I suggest a visit to Bluewater, my other half pulls a face, whereas the girls will beam and without hesitation, we set a time and a day.

As they say, timing is everything, and getting the timing right for a visit to any shopping mall anywhere in the world can really make a difference on how you feel while you're there.

Getting the timing right at Bluewater can be tricky with half a million people visiting each week (spending, on average, £150 each.)

When Bluewater is quiet, it's serene yet stimulating and on a good trip, can feel like walking around a museum or art gallery.

This is due to the architecture being a treasure in itself as the interior is made of marble.

If you glance upwards while you glide around, exquisite stonemasonry - carved out of marble - decorates the upper level.

But if it's busy, the sheer volume of people can be a little daunting and will interfere with your ability to absorb the building's delightful internal aesthetics.

For me, clothes are functional art. The new shoes and shiny, sparkly jewellery sit bewitchingly in the windows, all with the promise of an elegant evening on the town.

One of my favourite shops is All Saints. Hundreds of antique Singer sewing machines sit, artfully displayed, side by side and on top of each other in its huge treble fronted window.

The cavernous interior, which is all dim lighting and the darkest oak floor, is similar to Nelson's Victory (the sound of cannons replaced with cool music) providing the perfect backdrop for these clothes.

It's clear to see a terrific amount of effort has gone into creating All Saints and many of the clothes have stunning heavy beading (popular in the 1920s) - a far cry from the mass manufactured items on today's high street.

Outside, Bluewater, in summer, is equally as lovely.

It has 50 acres of parkland and 50 restaurants and bars, some of which are dotted along the ornate lakes and outdoor play areas.

Bluewater is the sophisticated aunt, and Lakeside is your favourite colourful, noisy cousin.

If I'm in a hurry and know what I want, then Lakeside is more than adequate.

It's rather nice not having to worry about finding change for the Dartford tolls too, and for us Essex folk, obviously it's nearer.

All the regulars have a home at Lakeside. It has one of the UK's biggest Primark stores, with three floors jam-packed with bargains.

Lakeside has recently enjoyed a major refurbishment which has included a superb spa that's proved a big hit with weary shoppers.

Both venues also have numerous cinema screens offering the 3D experience.

The bestselling items in both shopping centres this season have been winter jumpers, 3D televisions, holidays, Toy Story toys and perfume.

■ Bluewater and Lakeside are open until 11pm during the festive season.

FORGET THE GYM: On a visit to Bluewater, the average shopper will walk two-and-a-half miles.

Coffee shop boss does cycle stint for charity

By Karen Davis

A COFFEE shop manager has helped to raise more than £13,000 for charity by cycling on an exercise bike.

The bike went from store to store across the county and volunteers, including Dennis Kenne, cycled 3,536 miles - the equivalent of cycling from Essex to Ethiopia - to raise funds for the Costa Foundation, which supports communities in coffee-growing regions.

Dennis said: "I raised about £4,500 personally, and it was amazing."

"I think people need to see you actually doing something, but we were shocked by their generosity."

CAMPAIGNING pensioners have saved their bus shelter.

The canopy was removed from Nicholson House and Barringtons, on Southchurch Road, earlier this year, but it provoked outrage among elderly people forced to stand in the rain.

Thirty residents from Nicholson House handed a petition to Full Council last week, with the help of Councillors Louise Burdett and Blaine Robin.

Vera Gough, 94, who lives in Nicholson House, said: "I am delighted to hear that the bus shelter is going to be put back where it belongs.

"For me, it makes the difference between being able to pop to the shops when the weather isn't too good and having to stay inside.

"It is a small thing, but for people living here, it helps us to maintain a bit more independence."

The petition prompted discussions between Councillor Mark Flewitt, portfolio holder for transport and planning, local councillors and residents.

The debate led to an announcement last week that the council will be reinstating the bus shelter.

Ms Burdett said: "It was an impressive campaign.

"We took 30 residents to present this petition - in a week where the Government has launched their plans for greater power at a local level.

"This is a good example of what can be achieved."

Mr Robin said: "We are thrilled to have had the decision reversed. "It just shows what can happen when you empower local communities to effect change."

GIMME SHELTER: Councillor Blaine Robin with some of the residents of Nicholson House.

Stay safe with crime roadshow

SOUTHEND Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) has announced a series of free events as it continues its Community Safety Roadshow into 2011.

The first event will take place on Saturday, January 8, 2011, at Southend Central Library in Victoria Avenue, between 10am and 2pm.

Services provided free of charge include bicycle and mobility scooter tagging and property post-coding - for more, call 01702 464199.

Check your cabs

SOUTHEND Council is warning people not to get unlicensed cabs this festive season.

Revellers are urged to always check for a licence plate on the back of the cab and the driver's identification badge.

Health checks for local groups

COULD your organisation do with a free health check?

Southend Association of Voluntary Services (SAVS) is carrying out checks among voluntary and community groups in the Southend area, free of charge.

If you would like to arrange for your organisation to receive a free health check, contact Ingrid Harvey at SAVS on 01702 356038. Alternatively, e-mail outreach@savs-southend.co.uk

Meet the newest Neighbourhood Watch recruit

By Karen Davis

A TEENAGER has become Southend's youngest Neighbourhood Watch recruit.

James Hyam, 19, of Branksome Road, joined the scheme following a visit to Vinolved - a national charity that promotes volunteering for young people aged 16 to 25.

As a Neighbourhood Watch coordinator, he will be responsible for managing the group's activities and acting as a two-way channel of information between the community and the police.

James said: "I was unemployed at the time and looking to get involved in some voluntary work."

"I liked the idea of creating a better community environment in which to live, with residents helping each other to prevent crime."

"My main aim is to make the area a safe place to live. I believe that this can be achieved by me getting to know everyone in the group well so they feel they can approach me easily."

"In the past, some of the older residents have been either burgled or have had doorstep con-men pestering them."

"Regular updates of scams can be passed on to make residents more aware and provide them with greater confidence."

James believes it is important that younger people proactively get involved in their neighbourhood.

He said: "It's a good way for us to get our views across."

"My age group may have different concerns and ways of keeping the area safe compared to other age groups."

"A scheme like this is a good way to get your voice heard."

Jo Mcpherson, volunteer development manager at Vinolved, works with young people in Southend.

She said: "Vinolved teams are part of the National Youth Volunteering Charity. Apart from the community benefit, volunteering allows the volunteer to gain skills, experience and accreditation."

For more information about volunteering and the options available for younger people, contact the Vinolved team on 0808 178 7337 or visit www.vinspired.com

If you are interested in becoming involved in Neighbourhood Watch in Southend, contact Southend Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) on 01702 464199 or visit www.southendcdp.co.uk

RESPONSIBILITY: James Hyam is Southend's youngest Neighbourhood Watch recruit.

Flat roofing guaranteed for life...

Over 70% of homes in the UK have a flat roof – that's seven out of ten home owners with a potential flat roof problem...

A traditional flat roof construction is usually timber boarding fixed to the main joists and covered with a mineral felt and chippings.

This type of roof tends to have a number of associated problems.

The breakdown of a felt roof is generally slow, allowing water ingress to cause damage before any problem can be visibly detected within the home. Hot summer days can cause blistering, allowing the roof to become brittle and causing cracking in the colder months. You can often see felt cracking around exposed edges – one of the most common points of roof failure. Other areas of concern are joints, around pipes, skylights, flashings into brickwork or under tiles. It is these areas that are most vulnerable to movement within the felt system and where workmanship is most crucial. Mineral felt also attracts moss and algae growth, causing bad drainage and further degrading the roof surface.

It is very important that every homeowner is made aware that insurance companies no longer cover or accept any liability for any external or internal damage caused by a leaking felt roof. Unless it can be proven as storm or accidental damage, any such claim is categorised as 'wear and tear' or 'poor workmanship' if the roof is less than 10 years old. Unfortunately we see time and time again where the homeowner is left with the financial burden.

High-Tech Membrane Roofing are licenced installers of Switzerland's Sarnafil membranes, Ruvitex single-ply and our preferred product to the domestic market, the Protan PVC anti slip single-ply flat roofing system. Protan, who are based in Norway, have a pedigree in the design and manufacture of waterproofing materials dating back to 1939, producing the first roofing membrane in 1971. Today Protan are Scandinavia's largest producer thermoplastic membranes and are at the forefront in the technology and design of roofing membranes.

The Protan roofing system is predominantly architect-driven within the very competitive commercial roofing sector and it has worldwide reputation. The Protan roofing system has a proven life span of more than 40 years and carries many roofing accreditations along with a BBA certificate to last in excess of 30 years.

It is with proven technology High-Tech Roofing will permanently solve flat roof problems.

Our membranes are dimensionally stable and are unaffected by expansion and contraction. A titanium dioxide top layer provides optimum UV resistance and is solar reflective making it 100% maintenance free. The membranes are resistant to moss and algae while the vapour capabilities safeguard against blistering and cracking. The membranes are secured to the roof structure giving maximum protection from wind uplift. All joins carry a permanent fusion weld for superior strength and waterproofing, and all exposed edges are steel reinforced and mechanically fastened along with a fusion weld forming a solid storm resistant edge. A High-Tech roof has an anti-slip finish to walk on, is proven in all climates, storm resistant and 100% watertight – guaranteed for life never to leak.

High-Tech operates from our head office at Linden Road, Benfleet, Essex where we serve Essex, Kent and London regions.

We introduced our roofing systems to home owners in 1999 and High-Tech Roofing have installed and guarantee over 5,000 installations.

We only use our own fully trained installers, and we are a specialist flat roof company with a 100% commitment to customer care and satisfaction.

Exclusive New Year offer!

Throughout January we are paying all the 20% VAT making our products VAT free.

If you are retired you will pay no VAT and receive a further 10% discount. There are further rebates available for stand-by fitting installations, please ask our pricing surveyor for further details.

Vehicle Dismantlers

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, stamp orders or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors. Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.
